QUESTION OF U. S. NEUTRALITY RIGHTS TO BE CONSIDERED

Officials Alarmed at Rapidity of Europe's Drift Toward War

MUCH IS INVOLVED

Question Involving Freedom of Seas is Canvassed

By Kingsbury Smith
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1935, I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 19.—Alarmed at the rapidity with which Europe appears to be drifting toward another big war, Secretary of State Cordell Hull and his aides have found it imperative to consider the question of American neutrality rights in the event the League of Nations should decide to blockade Italian ports. This question involving the freedom of the seas, already has been canvassed by the State Department. International News Service is able to disclose exclusively that the preliminary canvassing of the question has led to the belief in official quarters that the United States should refrain from insisting upon the right to trade with Italy if the League of Nations imposes a blockade against that nation in an effort to save the peace structure of Europe.

The view prevails in high official quarters that if such a blockade was imposed to check Italian conquest, then the risk of the United States becoming involved in war with Great Britain and other members of the League by insisting upon the right to ship American goods through the blockade, would not be worth the value of American trade with Italy. Thus the possibility loomed that if war breaks out in Europe the State Department may recommend to President Roosevelt that this country refrain from pressing its neutrality rights in connection with any blockade against Italy.

This would represent one of the most momentous steps ever taken by the United States to keep out of European wars. It would be a complete reversal of the policy followed by Woodrow Wilson during the early days of the World War when the United States insisted upon its right to trade with both sides.

President Roosevelt does not possess any authority under existing laws to prohibit American nationals from trading with warring nations except in war supplies. However, the belief that he could adopt a passive stand prevails in State Department quarters and not make an issue of any interference with American goods if they were destined for a blockaded port.

SAYS WHISKEY AIDED HIS GASSED CONDITION

George Dubois, Bristol, Pleads Guilty to Drunken Driving

FINED AND IMPRISONED

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 19.—A Bristol resident, George Dubois, 38, colored, pleaded guilty before Judge Hiram H. Keller, this week, to a charge of driving while drunk on the upper Morrisville bridge.

Testimony was given by chief of police Albert Cooper, Morrisville, that he tussled with Dubois in order to subdue him, when he placed him under arrest.

George Duke, Morrisville, corroborated Chief Cooper's testimony, and stated that Dubois was visibly under the influence of liquor.

Dubois, in defense, testified that he had been to Trenton on a party and had taken two drinks.

Dubois said he was a veteran of the World War overseas, shot in both legs and gassed.

"The whiskey sort of helps my gassed condition when I drink," Dubois testified.

The defendant admitted he was arrested once for passing a red light, and was arrested 14 years ago on a charge of rape in Bucks county.

Mrs. Dubois, wife of the defendant, testified that the officer was the aggressor in the tussle on the bridge.

A fine of $200 and costs and 30 days in Bucks County Prison was imposed.

Harmon D. Walker, of 207 Perry street, Trenton, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller to a charge of driving while drunk in Morrisville. He was arrested by Officer Thompson of Morrisville.

The defendant testified that he is a Trenton Collector and was formerly employed for six months by the Bureau of Welfare in Trenton.

John W. Howard, Trenton bicycle merchant, and Walker's employer, testified that Walker is a very reputable citizen.

The Court imposed a sentence of 15 days in prison and directed the costs to be paid.

Percy Smith, of Trenton, formerly of 148 Lafayette street, Morrisville, pleaded guilty to driving while drunk on the Morrisville bridge. Judge Keller presided at the hearing. Smith was arrested by State Highway Patrolman Stabile.

The defendant told the Court that he had taken several drinks of whiskey in Trenton. He is a butcher by trade.

August Burkhardt, of Trenton, an inter-state bridge police officer, testified that so far as he knows, Smith's reputation has been "perfect."

Smith was sentenced to 15 days in Bucks County Prison.

When Thomas M. Kerrigan, 28-year-old attorney for the Home Owners Loan Corporation, went on trial before Judge Calvin S. Boyer here, Monday, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, conflicting stories were told by two physicians.

Patrolman Thomas V. Devlin, of the State Highway Patrol sub-station of Devon, and Dr. P. O. Leginus, of Riegelsville, both testified that the defendant was intoxicated and unable to operate a car following an accident on the Lackawanna Trail, north of Kintnersville, June 7, when he collided with a truck and fence belonging to Edward Jacoby.

Dr. Harvey Grim, of Revere, who was the first physician to treat the defendant, suffering with a concussion and cut in the tongue, in his testimony stated that in his opinion Kerrigan was sober. "I treated him for a concussion of the forehead and gave him several pills for pain in the head. I looked at his tongue and saw that it was bleeding, but I did not notice any odor of alcohol on his breath. He was in a stunned condition but I didn't think he was drunk."

Henry Ernst, 21, of Lehighburg, who heard the crash, testified that he saw the defendant sitting behind the wheel in his car following the crash. "I saw him start the motor and he drove it across the highway on the right hand side where he parked off

LIBERTY LIVES

The overwhelming defeat by the people at the polls of Governor Earle's scheme to N. R. A. our State Constitution is an ominous warning to the Harrisburg Administration, and to the Washington Government, its master, that Pennsylvania unmistakably repudiated the new deal, and has demanded a continuation of the system of individual liberty, as provided in our present safe and sane constitution.

Governor Earle's attempt to set it aside in his usurping ambition to centralize and consolidate government, and thereby to override the people of our State has received a righteous defeat and liberty lives. In his Farewell Address, George Washington warned the people against permitting "change by usurpation" in the constitutional system.

The revolt of the people of the State against Governor Earle's pet scheme of revision is a clear indication that the masses believe that progress and prosperity can be developed within the spirit and safeguard of our present basic law. And their action in voting down the holding of a constitutional convention was nothing more or less than a popular rejection of Governor Earle's leadership and the serving of notice upon him, that the people no longer will tolerate the kind of "Roosevelt Liberalism" that he is trying to feed to them.

The merited defeat that Governor Earle has received in the rejection of his demand to be allowed to "re-write the constitution" included a vote against vastly increasing the borrowing capacity hence the taxes of the State. It was a protest against his expressed wish that his power over the Legislature be extended "especially in fiscal matters." It was a vote against the centralization of government and the scrapping of home rule. The majority shows that that which was uppermost in the minds of the people was a distrust of the Harrisburg administration.

The Governor cannot in this instance of defeat fall back on his oft repeated wail "Republican Gangsters did it." The uprising against revision at this time, under such baneful influences as the Earle administration, was accumulative. The Pennsylvania State Grange, representing the agricultural interests of the State, was the first to go into the fight. The State Chamber of Commerce followed. The Constitutional Defense Committee, the Patriotic Order of Sons of America, the Junior Order of American Mechanics, and many other patriotic bodies joined the battle which was terminated on Constitution Day by victory.

THREE DEER AT LARGE IN BRISTOL AND VICINITY

Trio of Fleet-Footed Animals Seen on Property of Jacob C. Schmidt

LATER IN SAND PITS

Conjecture is rife in this vicinity over three deer that have been seen by numerous individuals within the past few days.

Rumors had been spread about that the trio of fleet-footed animals had made an escape from the estate of Selton Henry, State Road, Andalusia, but at the Henry estate this morning a Courier representative was informed that deer were missing from the place some time ago, but were recaptured. The capture occurred some time before the trio was seen in this vicinity.

On Monday afternoon between the hours of three and four o'clock, workmen at the greenhouses of Jacob Schmidt, and also members of the Schmidt family were startled and surprised to see two deer, a large and a small one, making a path as fast as they possibly could through the Schmidt property. Passersby attempted to catch up with the fleet-footed ones, but the last seen of the deer was when they leaped over blackberry bushes three to four feet high, near the railroad, and jumped several feet down the embankment of a ditch. A short time later three were seen in the vicinity of the railroad, the third having joined the two first seen.

No damage was done by the deer at the Schmidt property, and those who saw the two running through the place state that the trio was a fleet one. Other residents of Bristol also report seeing the deer in the vicinity of the sand-pits, and lots along the railroad tracks to the western section of the borough.

PEACE, WAR SPIRITS OF ETHIOPIA ARE CLASHING

Emperor Called From Conference to Quell 2500 Eager Warriors

ADVISES PATIENCE

By H. R. Knickerbocker
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 19.—The peace spirit and the war spirit of Ethiopia clashed today as Emperor Haile Salassie was called from a conference to quell 2500 warriors begging permission to start fighting at once.

The difficulty of the Emperor's position has never been better illustrated. While his every effort has been to avoid war, a great deal of his energy must be devoted to restraining his impatient and war-loving tribesmen. Suddenly the conference was disturbed by shouts of tribesmen swarming into the palace grounds. Presently as the Emperor appeared, a spokesman for the warriors humbly addressed His Majesty. He declared: "We have come from many days distant; we have waited a wearisome time for a chance to fight for you and for Ethiopia. Give us guns and cartridges, but above all give us imperial permission to fall upon our enemies."

The Emperor adjured patience.

John had driven away thinking she was still under the blankets.

ANDALUSIA, Sept. 19.—The regular monthly meeting of Andalusia Parent-Teacher Association was opened on Monday evening by Mrs. Francis Rossbauer, vice president, in the absence of H. Bowers Peters, former president, who has left the faculty. The resignation of Mr. Peters was read and accepted. Mr. Charles, a new member of the faculty, was introduced, and elected president for the coming year. Miss Pyle, chairwoman of the committee for investigating the serving of hot lunches, organizing a sewing class, and starting a library, reported on these activities. A room available for the purposes was discussed and a five minute recess declared for the purpose of examining the room. The association viewed the room in a body. It was decided that a committee be formed to carry out the project as outlined. Money was given to Miss Pyle to have the piano in the first grade room tuned.

Three Murdered; One Suicide

Newark, N. J., Sept. 19.—Four men were dead today, three murdered, one a suicide as the result of an argument over a woman's grave. Shortly after last midnight a telephone rang in police headquarters and a voice said, "I have just killed three men, come and get me." A moment later a squad of detectives were on their way to the apartment. Forcing open the door they found the bodies of four men, not three. Apparently the man who had made the phone call turned the gun on himself. Sprawled on a divan in the living room was the body of John F. Geary, 41; in the kitchen lay the bodies of his brother, Charles Geary, 43, and the pair's two uncles, Orlando LeVan, 60, and Benjamin LeVan, 45. At Charles Geary's side was a 12-gauge shotgun and in his pocket a 38-calibre revolver. Three weeks ago Orlando LeVan's wife Kathryn died in Easton, Pa. From neighbors, the detectives pieced together a partial picture of the tragedy.

The apartment belonged to the LeVan brothers and John Geary lived with them. Yesterday Charles Geary drove here in his automobile from his home in Tobyhanna, presumably to discuss with his brother and his uncles the plans for selecting a final burial place for his aunt, Kathryn. Early last night detectives learned the men began to argue over the matter. Neighbors said they became increasingly noisy as Charles Geary insisted the woman be buried one place while the other stubbornly advocated placing her to rest elsewhere. At the height of the argument a series of shots were heard in the apartment. Detectives declare they believe Charles Geary shot his relatives with the shotgun and then turned the weapon on himself after calling the police.

CROYDON MAN IS GIVEN JAIL TERM BY JUDGE KELLER

Charles Adams is Sentenced to Three Months to Three Years

FATHER OF 6 CHILDREN

Judge Expresses Sympathy For Family of The Defendant

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 19.—President Judge Hiram H. Keller on Tuesday afternoon sentenced Charles Adams, of Croydon, a vacuum cleaner salesman and father of six children, to serve not less than three months nor more than three years in the County Prison after a jury convicted him of drunken driving and assault and battery by automobile.

Adams, who was also charged with aggravated assault and battery by automobile on first bill, was acquitted of that charge by the jury. The Court suspended sentence on the assault and battery by automobile charge, but placed him on probation for a period of three years with County Probation Officer Russo in charge.

Two pathetic scenes were enacted in court room drama, the first when Officer Henry Hand, husky, stalwart State Highway patrolman, hobbled to the witness stand to testify on crutches because he was struck and hurled 15 feet by the defendant while stopping cars on the highway in Cornwells Heights, August 1, and has been crippled ever since, and the other when the defendant, who earns his living by selling vacuum cleaners at the weekly wage of between $30 and $35 per week, asked to be given an opportunity to pay the fine, which would have amounted to $200 and costs of prosecution totaling $97.16.

"Your family has my sympathy," said Judge Keller. "It is not an easy thing for the Court to sentence a father of six children, ranging in age from 8 to 17 years, to prison. Yet it is all the result of your own conduct and drinking beer."

"Four glasses of beer," continued the Court, "has brought suffering not only to you, but to your family, your children and the officer who apparently is without redress for the injuries sustained."

Corporal R. D. Evans, of the Oxford Valley sub-station of the State Highway Patrol, and Patrolman Henry Hand were stopping cars on the highway, near Cornwells Heights, August 1, when they noticed a car coming toward them not heeding their flashlight signals to halt. Corporal Evans testified that he shouted a warning of "Jump" to Patrolman Hand, but that the defendant caught him with the bumper, throwing him about fifteen feet, after colliding with a car on which the officers were making a checkup.

Sergeant A. A. Discavage, who investigated the accident and saw the defendant at the Harriman Hospital in Bristol, following the accident, which took place between two and three o'clock in the morning, stated that in his opinion Adams was drunk and unable to drive a car.

Patrolman Hand, who has been confined to the Harriman Hospital for a month with injuries to his back and legs, and appeared in court with his left leg bandaged and unable to walk but hobbled on crutches, testified that he realized the car would not stop after it refused to slow down and that it caught him trying to get out of its path.

"It struck me with the bumper on the back of both legs, and I was thrown fifteen feet. I landed on my right hand and left elbow. The ankle in my left leg is still indispensed."

Patrolman Hand was standing beside the car of Arthur Greenberg, a Philadelphia motorist, who was undergoing an inspection of his driver's and operator's licenses.

Greenberg, who was accompanied by two friends, both of whom served as witnesses, stated that he had just given his cards to Hand when he heard Corporal Evans yell "Jump."

"I saw that my car was going to be struck and there was nothing to do about it. I didn't see what happened to the patrolman. Adams' left front fender hit mine and then he drove about 104 feet into a house before bringing his car to a halt," said Greenberg.

Adams, the defendant, taking the stand in his own defense, denied that he was intoxicated. "I drank four small kitchen glasses of beer, I saw no flashlights or headlights on the Greenberg car."

"When I saw a human being on the road I became excited and I must have put my foot on the accelerator instead of the brake. I would not have run into the Greenberg car if the human object had not been in my path. The object was a man. When I saw the dark object I became excited and stepped on the 'gas' instead of putting on the brakes," testified Adams.

SCIENTISTS' ROMANCE

Even though the alphabet still rules in Washington it has not taken the romance out of many of the tasks assigned to those who see something in government service beyond the pay check.

From a remote part of China comes word that Nicholas Roerich, plant hunter associated with the U. S. department of agriculture, has met with unbounded success in his search for drought-resisting grasses, plants and shrubs considered suitable for planting in America to prevent soil erosion and dust storms. He has collected over 300 varieties, preserving their seeds for experimental planting in this country.

Grasses that seem to thrive in extreme temperatures and through lack of rainfall were found in abundance in the Gobi Desert, and possibly offer an anchor for American soils over areas in need of protection.

But, still not satisfied, Roerich will push on with his small expedition to the remote mountainous parts of India in search of further plants. The hardships and inconveniences the party encounters will be looked on by us as a sacrifice, but to scientists as a scientific picnic, filled with romance and surprises.

THE DOORBELL SITUATION

Interesting news from Washington. It seems a board for the "co-ordination of doorbell ringing" is a new agency to be set up under the new deal. Its function will be to prevent overdue duplication of doorbell ringing by works-projects employees who go from house to house collecting information in various surveys that have been authorized at an expense of more than 5 million dollars.

It would seem to us that, considering the number of times people have to answer doorbells, this latest co-ordinating activity would be more to the point if it were aimed at mitigation of a nuisance that already exists. In any event, it must be hoped that the new campaign of doorbell ringing will yield better results than that designed to get every home owner to put an NRA sticker on his front window—until it had to be chiseled off without the help of a co-ordinator.

SPINACH

A controversy has broken out in New York over the relative merits of spinach and Swiss chard. Some anti-spinachers are advocating chard as possessing all the virtues of spinach and none of its vices. The opposition says Swiss chard is bitter and offensive to the palate.

We desire to shoot no dice in this controversy, but we are willing to go on record that cooking is an important factor. If spinach is put through a colander and given a little added flavor with egg-sauce, even little children will cry for it. And when you boil a ham, save the water and cook Swiss chard in it.

Goodbye now; we are going out to lunch, but not on spinach or Swiss chard.

"Apparently," says T. B. Leigh, a great and wise Canadian judge, "a crooner is a person who cannot sing at all."

NEW YORK — (INS) — What with Greek, Egyptian, Russian and Renaissance popping forth to give us our styles this season, Chinese things are in the offing and ready to break on the fashion world any moment. The recently opened Chinese Arts Exhibit in London, they say, is the big influence . . . just like the Italian Arts affair that shunted us into a flurry of Raphael and Da Vinci. . . .

No matter what your reaction, chiffons are to be right there this Winter when it comes to evening gowns, blouses and whatnot that chiffon goes into. "Very new and smart" is the word. . . . Someone takes time out to suggest that despite the comings and goings of full skirts, draped silhouettes and variations we always have with us the classic slim dress with full swagger packet. And it's so. . . .

Quaint as the Dickens is the slinky new evening gown of black mat crepe with white curtain fringe zig-zagged around the bodice and knees. . . . Changeable jersey in novel color combines also is finding its way into the evening salons. One we saw was a Grecian affair of lustrous green-and-gold mix with bands of green and gold jersey twisted about the décolletage and over the shoulders. Bands of the same material, but with the dull

"CAST INTO EDEN" BY HENRY C. ROWLAND

CHAPTER XXVI

"It's going to be worse than ever, Jerry. I was already fed up with the whole rotten show when we were part owners in it, and now I've got to be a mere performer. Sort of professional guest. Unpaid hostess. I'd rather stay here next to nature."

"Can't be done, Linda."

"Why not, if it's what one wants?"

"You'd soon get sick of it. You were cast for a bigger role."

"Well, then, can't you get a job so that we can be married?"

"All I know is ship stuff and a language or two. No chance of a billet and not pay enough to buy you stockings if I got one."

"You wouldn't have to buy me stockings, or much of anything else in the way of clothes, if we lived here. And we are going to be married, whether you like it or not."

"We can't live here because the place isn't ours and everything points out the owner as an unholly horror. We're lucky to get clear of the premises before he gets back, after the mess we've made."

"Not so bad, all things considered."

"It's not apt to stop to consider them. We've got away with a lot of his stores and torn a chicken house to pieces, and ripped the painted leather backs out of two priceless prelate's chairs, and turned his living room into a boat building shop, and worst of all, sampled his Forbidden Fruit. Then before we leave we've got to rummage his chests."

"We can't help all that, Jerry. But the most important thing is that we are going to be married. As soon as we get ashore."

"On nothing a year and no job in sight, and you a girl-de-luxe that never has learned any more about money than how to get rid of it aimlessly?"

"Something will turn up."

"Yes, it usually does. A family of children, when you're poor. Then what?"

"I don't believe you want to marry me."

"Not when we're chucked out of Eden without the means of covering our nakedness. As I've already told you, I'm no admirer of Adam."

"He added drily, 'Nor any emulator of him.'"

"So I've noticed. Daddy might still do something for you, Jerry. Get you billeted somewhere."

"I know what your Dad would want to do for an impoverished son-in-law. Kill him. The billet would be in a cemetery. The Potter's Field."

"Since you're determined not to marry me or anything, about all there is to say is good-night."

"That's all," Jerome agreed. "Good-night."

"All this back-to-nature stuff in books and magazines and movies is hokey," she said disgustedly. "We should have found a pirate's treasure chest in the old ruins up there."

"Yes, and then a shaggy hermit of a priest to marry us. In fact we might have managed with only the treasure chest."

A stupid quarantine. I don't believe that sailor had typhus."

"For I, no matter what Captain Moriarty said. Look here, why don't you marry Tommy? He warned me that unless I showed some form he would."

"And all you showed with me was fighting form, so he did."

"What?"

"Asked me to marry him. In Havana. He kept on asking me about every day after. That was half the reason for my jumping ship."

"What was the other half?"

"You. I was afraid I might give in and marry Tommy. . . and I wanted to marry you. Even when we were fighting. What's more, you wanted to marry me."

Jerome groaned: "Nothing like I want to marry you now."

"I know all about that, too. I've felt as if we were married since the first night here."

"So have I. The trouble is, we're not."

"That depends on what marriage really is. You are more my husband right now than Tommy could be after seven years of matrimony and five children. You and I are married in our hearts, Jerry."

There's no getting round that."

He knew this to be the truth. It became suddenly clear to him that Linda and himself had been lovers from the start of the yachting voyage, and that their bitter differences had been on that very account. Both had worked desperately to convince themselves that they despised each other.

She said presently: "We started right in to quarrel because we knew we had no business to fall in love and marry."

"Yes," he agreed, "and the trouble is that the situation is still the same."

"Not entirely. We were merely falling in love with each other then; quarrels and everything."

FLYING BOATS WILL SOON START SERVICE OVER THE ATLANTIC OCEAN; GERMANS MAKE PLANS FOR REGULAR SCHEDULED SERVICE TO UNITED STATES

Lufthansa Making Plans For Inauguration of Such Flights

SECRECIES IS MAINTAINED
Planes Make 100 Crossings of the South Atlantic Without Mishap

By Eric Boy

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—(INS)—Opening of a regular transatlantic air service between Germany and the United States with flying boats is announced by Martin Wronsky, director of the German Lufthansa, one of the biggest air traffic concerns of the world.

The Lufthansa has in all secrecy made preparations for the inauguration of the North American service, and one of its flying boats may start for the first trial flight in a few weeks, unless unforeseen difficulties should arise, director Wronsky explained.

"Our regular airmail service across the Atlantic to South America has been quite a success," the Lufthansa chief declared. "The twin-motored Dornier flying boats have just crossed the South Atlantic 100 times without a single mishap since the service was opened 18 months ago.

"The flying boats have covered about 900,000 miles, which is equal to circumnavigating the globe 35 times. This brilliant performance was made possible by the two steamers Westfalen and Schwabenland stationed between Africa and South America as 'floating' platforms", where the planes are regularly refueled and started again by catapults. The original transmission time for mail between Stuttgart, Germany, and Buenos Aires, has been reduced from 5 to slightly more than 3 days."

"The situation on the North Atlantic is much more difficult due to unfavorable weather conditions," Wronsky pointed out. "If we establish a regular transatlantic air service between Europe and the United States now, we have vast experience at our disposal not only from the South American service but also from the catapult plane service that was inaugurated in 1931 on the liners Bremen and Europa. Both will be of great help for building an air bridge between Europe and the United States."

"Our preparatory experiments for this service have made great progress and the first trial flight of one of our boats scheduled this fall will, as we hope, go a long way towards the final solution of the North Atlantic flying problem. As the United States, England, and also Holland are making efforts to create regular transatlantic air services, we hope that these experiments by German commercial aviation will have the desired success."

"The first trial flight to the United States will be made by one of our Dornier flying boats. As in the South American service, the boat will be assisted by the two floating platforms, Schwabenland and Westfalen, for intermediate landings. The plane will go down on the sea behind the steamers, to be taken aboard by a special trailer-sail, and it will be started again by a big catapult."

"The cruising range of the 10-ton flying boats is much larger than the distance between coast and those floating platforms. The safety factor is therefore very high. The planes keep in constant wireless communication with those ships, and may be quickly picked up from the sea if unforeseen trouble should necessitate an emergency landing."

"Aid by such ships for transatlantic planes is absolutely necessary, because, in spite of the enormous increase of speed and cruising range of modern planes, it is quite obvious that the transatlantic plane has not been built yet which can cross the ocean with absolute safety and regularity imperative for mail or passenger service."

Mrs. Florence Adams, his wife, testified that as soon as she saw a man on the highway her husband turned the car to avoid striking him. She denied that her husband was intoxicated.

Dr. George T. Fox, of Bristol, who examined the defendant, testified that he was not drunk, but that in his opinion he was unfit to drive a car.

With President Judge Hiram H. Keller presiding, the trial of James Bracken, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, began this morning.

The defendant is alleged to have been involved in a collision on the Lincoln Highway, near Parkland, August 11.

Patrolman G. F. Carfagno, who investigated the accident, testified that the defendant was intoxicated.

Dr. H. Lovett, Langhorne, testified Bracken was intoxicated.

Convicted of drunken driving by a jury, Thomas Waters, Jr., 26, of Bristol, was sentenced by Judge Calvin S. Boyer to serve not less than two months nor more than two years in the county prison, in addition to paying the costs of prosecution.

"You may have the idea so many ignorant people have, that to be guilty you must be dead drunk. So that the people of Bristol, who know you and your reputation, will know what happens to drunken drivers, the Court is going to make an example of your case."

"The Court suggests that before you ask for a parole you pay the sum of $50 to Mr. Beamer, whose car you damaged on Labor Day in the collision with your truck in Bristol."

Charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, Thomas Waters, Jr., went on trial before Judge Calvin S. Boyer.

Howard H. Beeman, the first witness for the Commonwealth, testified that the defendant was driving a truck in Bristol on Labor Day when it collided with a car driven by the witness.

Chief of Police Linford Jones investigated the accident at Pond and Dorrance streets.

The defendant admitted to Chief Jones he had been drinking beer. He had the odor of alcohol on his breath. "He walked with a staggering gait and when I talked to him I knew there was something wrong with him. I have known him all my life. In my opinion he was intoxicated and unfit to drive a car."

"When Waters is sober it is hard to get him to say anything. He is pretty quiet," said Chief Jones.

Dr. Fred Wagner, of Bristol, who examined the defendant following the crash, 6:25 p. m., testified that he was under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

"He told me he had been drinking beer more or less all week," Dr. Wagner said.

"I was not going very fast down Pond street, not over 15 or 20 miles an hour. I had the green light. Two men were with me riding in the truck when the accident happened."

Waters denied he was drunk or that he staggered.

"It would take 15 or more beers to make me drunk," asserted the defendant.

Lawrence Clark, who pleaded guilty to operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent, was sentenced by Judge Boyer to serve thirty days in the County Prison. He was also directed to pay for the costs of damage to the car.

Richard Day, of Cornwells, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, went on trial before Judge Calvin S. Boyer.

A Bristol policeman, Daniel Ferry, as the first witness, testified he saw Day and another young man walk about 15 feet in a drunken condition, May 31, in Bristol.

"I saw them coming along the street with their arms about each other's necks and yelling 'whoopie.' They got into a car and the defendant sat behind the wheel. He drove the car about 50 feet."

Officer Charles Nichol, who accompanied Ferry, testified that they "headed the defendant's car off" with their police car serving as a barricade.

Dr. Fred Wagner, Bristol physician, examined the defendant.

Dr. Wagner testified that in his opinion Day was intoxicated.

Day, the defendant, who is employed in Philadelphia, admitted drinking several glasses of beer.

He denied that he was intoxicated. "I had my complete senses and was not intoxicated," said Day.

"I left the car in gear and when my friend got into the car he stepped on the starter and it jumped ahead. First it jumped a trifle and then went ahead smoothly."

The jury was composed of Harry H. Trumbauer, Green Lane, R. D. 1; Holmes T. Servis, Morrisville; Lloyd Sollday, Coopersburg, R. D. 1; Jacob F. Crouthamel, Silverdale; Frank B. Smith, Tohickon; Ralph R. Dunn, Mechanicsville; William D. Knight, Bristol, R. D. 2; Henry A. McGrath, Langhorne; Grace Stoneback, Quakertown; Samuel Englemeyer, Sellersville; Noah Furness, Upper Black Eddy; Anna S. Landreth, Bristol.

HOLLYWOOD—The smiling of Bob Fitchie for Hollywood will tend to scotch the rumor that his enduring romance with Jeanette MacDonald is over and that Gene Raymond has replaced him in the singing star's affections. Bob's return home at this time is really a sentimental gesture. He still has unfinished business in Europe, but, for a number of years, it has been a tradition that Jeanette never starts a picture unless her manager-fiance is in Hollywood. "Rose Marie" goes into production soon and Bob is coming 6,000 miles to keep up the old custom. He returns to Europe after a brief reunion.

It's no secret that Jeanette has been worried over the rumors linking her name with that of Raymond. Yet she doesn't see any sense in being a hermit during Bob's absence. That she has spirit is proved by this. A would-be helpful friend asked her why she didn't go out with a dozen men instead of just Raymond. "Because I don't think there are a dozen attractive and unattached men in Hollywood," was the star's exasperated reply.

For "Rose Marie," by the way, M. G. M. will stage the biggest musical sequence ever filmed out-of-doors. More than 500 Indians, all the studio's contract show girls, Miss MacDonald, Nelson Eddy and a technical crew of 100 travel to Lake Tahoe to put on the famous totem pole dance number in the musical. And then later, 300 horsemen will be sent up from Hollywood to impersonate Canadian mounted police in riding sequences.

Soft ball being a girl's game as well as a man's, Ruby Keeler is organizing a nine at Warner Brothers and will challenge feminine clubs at the other studios, the gate receipts to go to charity. The athletic Ruby plans to pitch for her team and (if this be nepotism, make the most of it) her two sisters, Helen and Gertrude, are to play. June Travis (her dad's the big shot with the Chicago Cubs) is another likely member of the outfit. Margaret Lindsay, quite an athlete at school, will be invited to join. Not only the player list but the whole studio personnel will be scanned for material.

You Asked Me and I'm Telling You! Mrs. Timothy Walker, Redondo Beach: The next Garbo film is not decided but may be "Camille" or "A Woman of Spain". There's still no definite date for the Swedish star's return to Hollywood.

There's much laughing up the sleeve going on at one of the major studios on account of an embarrassing situation in a projection room the other day. The wife of the studio's big boss wished to give some visitors a special treat so she let them sit in while the daily rushes of a picture were being run off. Suddenly one of the players on the screen (a blonde feminine star) blew up in her lines. The astonished visitors got the shock of their lives when, from the lips, there rolled a flow of soul satisfying oaths.

What Latin screen actor talked out of turn in a Chicago night club the other evening and was beaten almost to a pulp?

HOLLYWOOD TICKET-TAPE—

Jackie Cooper's Ma is tickled to death that school is starting for Jackie and 15 neighborhood kids have been building model airplanes in his room. And what with all the glue and hammering Mrs. C. is nearly at her wit's end. Katherine De Mille will go one better than the other Hollywood ranch owners, she'll buy her acres in Mexico and build herself a hacienda. Some of the songs in Mae West's new one may be by Gene Austin. R-K-O had to build a portable dressing room for a set in "In Person" and, after the cameras were through with it, Pan Berman gave it to Ginger Rogers, who'll now be the envy of the other stars on the lot. Now that the British labor commissioner has okayed the Letroy Prinz chorines back into London, half his Paramount line of cuties have put in applications for foreign service.

DID YOU KNOW—That Cecil B. De Mille recently unearthed some family papers showing that his entry into the world cost his parents exactly $9, including a buck for a birth certificate?

STATE NEWS

By Frederick N. Ploaquin

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 19.—(INS)—The depression has changed the reading habits of the nation, according to Ralph Munn, director of the Carnegie Library here, who revealed in an interview that despite the demoralizing effect of the depression, the public turned to reading matter of relatively high intellectual scale.

"Strange as it may seem," he said, "A survey disclosed that during this period of confusion, people did not come to libraries in search of 'escape literature' as one would suspect. On the contrary, they came to libraries for books that would enable them to understand the trend of the times to which they were forced to adapt themselves intellectually."

The survey disclosed, he said, that from 1929 to 1934 there was evidenced significant increases in the type of reading matter called for at the library. Although Mr. and Mrs. Public increased their desire for fiction by 45 per cent., the increase in philosophy and psychology was 83 per cent.; religion, 67 per cent.; sociology and economics, 82 per cent.; technology, 139 per cent.; fine arts, 84 per cent., and non-fiction, 72 per cent.

"We can see by these figures," Munn declared, "that the depression did not find people reading merely to 'forget it all.'"

"The greatest increase was in the group of books which deal with technology and other useful arts, including office practice, accounting, and other business and industrial subjects," Munn said. "It was the desire to become more efficient in present positions, or to prepare for others that spurred readers to desert love, western, and mystery stories," he explained.

Munn was convinced that the library was becoming the "university of the people." When a book on the machine age is borrowed by a carpenter, a cigar maker, an automobile salesman, two housewives, a telephone lineman, and a tailor, it may fairly be said that the library is aiding in the popular understanding of important problems, he declared.

Munn believes that newspapers were greatly responsible for this transition. People who had a desire to learn the dynamics of human relationships supplemented information from the newspapers with background from the library, he said.

Munn has been in charge of many of the country's largest libraries and just recently returned from Australia where he studied the library problems of that country. He was convinced that the system at present in the United States must follow many lines of improvement if the people are to be served to best advantage. Munn pointed out that there were 45,000,000 people in this country who have no access to a library. This constituted 37 per cent. of the total population. And, he stated, the largest percentage was in Pennsylvania.

LUNCH BOX TIME IS HERE AGAIN; SCHOOL MENUS ARE SUGGESTED

By Rhandena A. Armstrong

(Home Economics Representative)

"School days, dear old golden rule days" are here again. To mother this means an endless round of filling and emptying lunch boxes. About one-fourth of our children's meals are eaten at school, so we should consider what foods make up these meals. Many mothers do not realize that correct foods are a guard to their children's health, protecting them against colds, other infections, and malnutrition.

Each lunch should contain at least one-half pint of milk; a substantial food, usually sandwiches with fillings made of protein; a juicy fruit or vegetable; and a simple dessert or sweet. One woman spends 15 minutes once a week and plans her children's lunches for the following week. These plans allow for substitutions. In this way she saves time, improves the quality of her lunches, and makes the lunches a joy rather than a dreaded daily task.

Be sure the child gets his milk at noon. It may be included in the hot dish. Vary the sandwiches by using different fillings, different kinds of bread and cut out in different shapes. Fillings, such as egg, cheese, meat, chicken, fish, or building foods, are best although sweet sandwiches may be used occasionally. Use the vegetables and fruits in season. During the winter canned and stored vegetables and canned, cooked, and dried fruits should be used. Vegetable and fruit salads are fine and pack nicely in jars. The sweet included should be simple. A cereal pudding, plain cake, or cookies and occasionally pieces of candy. Once a week plan a surprise for this never fails to delight the child.

The following lunches are suggested for early Fall days. In each case it is better to have the hot dish provided at school.

I. Hot dish: Cream of bean soup; milk, one cup, one pint if not included in the hot dish; chopped chicken with salad dressing on whole wheat bread; cottage cheese and jam on whole wheat bread; peach; ginger cookie.

II. Hot dish: Cream of potato soup; milk, one cup; brown bread and butter sandwiches; whole raw tomato; hard boiled egg; plain cake.

III. Hot dish: Scalloped rice and tomato; milk, one pint; slice of cold meat or bean loaf on white bread; apple; cup cake.

IV. Hot dish: Corn chowder; milk, one cup; peanut butter on whole

"MY FAVORITE DISH --and-- HOW I PREPARE IT!"

—BY—
MRS. ELWOOD GOSLIN

This recipe calls for the selection of onions which are at least 1½ inches in diameter. These are peeled and cut in slices one-quarter inch thick. Then wheat bread; honey and cheese on whole wheat bread; raw carrot sticks; tapioca pudding.

"RAINBOW SNOW"

MELBOURNE, Sept. 17.—(INS)—Colored snow fell on the Australian Alps for the second time this winter. It changed the landscape around Hotham Heights from white to chocolate within a few hours, while at Mt. Buller the inhabitants woke to see a bright red layer on the snow, half an inch deep. By noon heavy snow had blotted out the red layer. The most remarkable fall was at St. Bernard's Hospital, where pink snow fell in two layers, an inch and a half thick, with a 6-inch strip glittering white snow sandwiched in between.

My favorite vegetable dish is French fried onions. They are not only easily prepared but are a welcome change from the more common methods for serving onions.

Next prepare a batter by beating one egg yolk and adding to it one-half cupful of milk, and one-half cupful of flour.

Dip the onion rings in the batter, and fry in deep fat at 395 degrees Fahrenheit for about 4½ minutes.

These make a most tasty dish, and many folks who do not care for onions in other forms become enthusiastic over the French fried dish.

"Simple" Life Becoming Popular

At Least Three Separate Pairs Have Tried Living Primitive Life in Secluded Spots in Last Month

Graham Ring and Tom Vitos.

By JEAN ALLEN
International Illustrated News Writer

SEATTLE, Wash.—Let's go native. But let's not. Winter's coming on. Every once in a while one, two or more individuals tire of living in crowded cities, working in shops or offices and take a fling in some isolated, uncivilized haunt and try to combat nature.

These 1935 "Tarzans" are becoming more and more common. So much so that in the last month at least three separate parties have set out with a pair of shorts, perhaps a pair of tennis shoes and perhaps a bow and arrow. Nature won't be so tough for us, they probably argue, what with our education and our bare hands.

Can't Take It, Eh?

Sargent H. Copeland and E. V. Flick, two youthful fellows, armed themselves with bows and arrows and knives and left their Seattle homes to live one month in Woods pond on the forest-like terrain of the Cascade mountains. They expected to wrest their daily fare from Mother Nature.

Another Washington pair tried the stunt, a couple of "Tacoma Tarzans", Graham Ring and Tom Vitos. Shortly after their departure for the life that, made their ancestors a virile race, Ring and Vitos returned. They came out of the Olympic peninsula's wilds to tell anyone and everyone that primitive life is greatly overrated. They were in a state of collapse on finishing what may be termed a "1935 Edgar Rice Burroughs derby".

The latest pair to leave their homes and try living in the Tarzan style is a father and son of Chatham, Mass., Chief of Police Everett Eldridge and his son, Everett, Jr., chose a spot near their homes to give this primitive life idea the once-over.

Nudists May Have Started It

Eldridge and his son vowed when they left they would weather the elements for six days and live only on what nature offers. They stayed on Morris Isle off the shore of Chatham. The two men were clad only in their shorts which constituted their entire garment. They constructed a lean-to for shelter.

Perhaps the nudists' cults have something to do with this increase in Tarzans. In various sections of the country nudists' clubs have been formed, with members "apparently" enjoying primitive lives.

The back-to-nature movement is not new, however. At various times in the last century individuals have left their homes to take a fling at nature as is. A lonely, uncivilized back country or a mountain retreat have been the locales.

Even the government has fallen to the rage or what have you, in what may be termed a far-fetched case. When the Matanuska colony in Alaska was started, it was in some degree a back-to-nature movement.

Poverty-stricken farmers in the western states were selected to establish themselves in a region hitherto unexploited to any great extent.

Everett Eldridge and son.

MOFFO WANTS THREE CHAMPIONS TO BOX HERE

Efforts are being made by Match-maker Sammy Moffo to secure the three national champions for the amateur boxing show to be conducted by the St. Ann's Athletic Association, Monday night. The champs are Johnny Marcellini, Johnny Morgan and Eli Wesley. If successful, Moffo will pit them against boxers from Philadelphia.

"Lenny" Dever who twice took a beating from the mitts of Chet Castor returned home yesterday after spending a month in New York. Dever appeared in fine shape and asked to be put on the next boxing card. It is most likely that Sammy Moffo will match the Catholic Boys' Club representative with Johnny Ferrara of the Mason Club. Ferrara defeated Castor several weeks back.

Roosevelt Rowe, colored sensation, who in his two appearances here scored knockouts is expected to be present Monday night provided a suitable opponent is secured for him. Rowe is picked to win the 147 pound class of the Junior Amateur Golden Glove Tournament being held in Philadelphia.

Reserved seats for Monday night's battles are now on sale and are selling fast. Anyone wishing a ticket reserved may do so by calling 9934.

BENSALEM AND BRISTOL TO PLAY PRACTICE GAME

The Bensalem football squad is preparing for its first game with Newtown at home on September 27. The team has been drilling mostly on fundamentals, such as blocking, tackling and passing.

There have been only two scrimmages so far. Tuesday in the longest scrimmage thus far. The probable first team pushed the second team all over the field, but the second team couldn't do anything with the third team.

The varsity is very light, the heaviest man being Captain Jack Thomas, who weighs 165. They have to make up for this by speed and their plays are being built around this factor. Tomorrow the team will have a practice game with Bristol on Bensalem's field at 4:00 p. m.

The players who have stood out so far are: ends, Jungmanns, Godshall, Borman, Swodi; tackle, Thomas (C), Carter, Henderson; guards, Adams, Turner, Faust, Marshall; centers, Abbott, Osborne; quarterbacks, Mackenzie, R. Lange; other backs, Wilke, Effing, Robinson and L. Malone.

CAGE LEAGUE TO MEET

There will be a meeting of the Bristol Basketball League tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the Hibernian Hall.

PENNSYLVANIA'S SPORTS PULSE

By VIC JACOBS
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 19.—(INS)—Winter's closing in on the year so it is not surprising to find hockey promoters busy shaping plans to put the ice sport over in Pennsylvania on a bigger scale this season. . . . Intentions are to replace last year's amateur Yellow Jackets in Pittsburgh with an International League sextet under coaching of the veteran pucksters, Sprague Cleghorn. . . . Les Patrick is working on a team that would represent Philadelphia's entry in the Canadian-American circuit.

Coach Lud Wray could find no place for Alabama Pitts, heralded Sing Sing athlete, in Philadelphia's line-up while the Eagles were losing to Pittsburgh. . . . Wonder if it portends that Bama's football career is destined for the same unobtrusive fate which marked his professional baseball reception?

"I've got a $10 bill for a homer, Larry," mused Mayor Stanley Davis of Scranton to Babe Fischer as the Miners' hard-hitting fielder strode toward the plate in the play-off series opener of the New York-Pennsylvania League against Binghamton. . . . "And I'll give anybody $10 if I hit a homer, too," Fischer retorted. . . . He got a base on balls.

A spacious gymnasium is called for in the blueprints from which the new $60,000 high school will be built at Wilcox, up near St. Mary's. . . . Two years of football famine ends at Southmont Hi this autumn when the school will be given its first representation on the gridiron in that time. . . . Coachships have been awarded to a couple more Pittsburgh collegians. . . . Al DeLuca, former Duquesne grid star has been named assistant to coach Paul Abele at Johnstown's Catholic High and Luby Dimeolo of Pitt, dismissed as pilot of the Pittsburgh Pros, has been added to the Westminster College staff.

E. C. Taggart, who suddenly died in his Steelton home a few days ago, was one of Pennsylvania's outstanding sport officials. He held membership in the Eastern and Central Pennsylvania football officials associations.

In His Father's Footsteps

By BURNLEY

That old adage, "Like father, like son," may be true in a majority of cases, but it certainly has never worked out in the case of professional prize fighters.

Many famous beak-busters have raised their sons with the explicit intention of making great fighters out of them, but the kids never seemed to be "chips off the old block" as far as throwing leather was concerned.

Young Bob Fitzsimmons is exhibit A whenever this subject is discussed. Young Robert's dad, the immortal Fitz, was perhaps the greatest puncher in ring history, and he did his best to make a fighter out of his son. However, young Bob inherited none of his famous father's punching prowess, and proved a dismal flop as a ringman.

Prof. Mike Donovan, Billy Papke and quite a few other illustrious beak-busters had sons who tried their luck as professional glove tossers, but in spite of their famous parents, none of these youngsters showed a glimmer of fistie talent.

Now, however, a youthful phenom has emerged who really shows much of the pugilistic ability of his old man, who in the case happens to be none other than the one and only Mike Gibbons, far-famed St. Paul Phantom of other fistie days.

Young Jack Gibbons has already made such progress that he must be ranked among the ten leading middleweights of the world, and considering his very limited professional ring experience, the latest of the fighting Gibbons clan certainly shapes up as a potential champion.

Jack has rolled up a neat string of kayos, and recently scored his most impressive victory when he handed the very formidable Frankie Battaglia a sound thumping. It looks like the new St. Paul Phantom is going to wreak plenty of havoc among the present-day knuckle throwers.

ST. ANN'S PLAYERS ARE TO MEET ON FIELD

Players of the St. Ann's A. A. football team will meet on St. Ann's field tonight at 6:30 for their final work-out previous to the meeting of the Bridesburg team Sunday. Coach "Bill" Dougherty has been working the boys every night since he was appointed mentor and feels as if the boys are now ready for action.

Players reporting to the Bristol coach have played with the Furmans, Y. M. A., Passale, and previous St. Ann's team. With these players and several raw recruits, the St. Ann's pilot has welded together a club that this borough will be proud to see in action on the gridiron.

St. Ann's this season will wear a different uniform than in past seasons. The jerseys are all white with purple and gold stripes on the sleeves. The number on the back is purple while the socks are all white with purple stripes running down.

HITLER DOES NOT RUN OLYMPICS

By Bill Weart

(I. N. S. Sports Writer)
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19.—(INS)—Lawson Robertson, veteran University of Pennsylvania and Olympics track and field coach, sees no danger of the United States withdrawing from the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin because of Adolph Hitler's campaign against Jews.

The American Olympic committee, Robertson revealed today, has been keeping a close watch on developments in Germany, but "as yet there has been no evidence to support the arguments of those who contend that racial discrimination is being practiced by the German Olympic committee. Certainly, there has been no proof of it as it affects those American Jews who wish to compete."

"Robble," who was recently named to lead the U. S. athletes in their German invasion next year, declared that when evidence of such discrimination is uncovered, the United States and other participating nations will act. The committee, he added, "does not intend to be stampeded by outcries of interested persons who have no facts to back their charges."

If anti-German propaganda in this country brought about withdrawal of the United States from the games, the noted track mentor feels, it unfortunately would create anti-Jewish sentiment in this country.

"Germany is NOT running the Olympic games," said Robertson, vehemently. "Germany merely is furnishing the grounds for next year's contests."

"Control of the games rests with the 56 participating nations, each of whom control one vote. It is for all the competing groups to decide what treatment is to be accorded the athletes, Jewish and otherwise. Of course, what Hitler's Government decides to do about Jewish athletes of that country is Germany's business."

Robertson recalled that in the 1932 Olympic Games in Los Angeles there were 31 athletes registered from the United States, and of that number only three were Jews.

"From present indications, the Jewish representation at the Berlin games will be about in that proportion, roughly, one-half of one per cent, I am sure," Robertson continued, "the German Government and people will show good sportsmanship toward Jewish athletes of visiting nations."

"If the present agitation against Germany should result in the withdrawal of this nation, I believe the ultimate reaction would be unfavorable to the Jews in America."

TEAM TO MEET

Tonight in the K. of C. home there will be a meeting of the Catholic Boys' Club baseball team. Manager Jack Muligan asks all members who wish to participate in the playoff to be present.

(I. N. S. Sports Writer)
NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(INS)—The International Gold Cup, only race in America in which horses can qualify for the Grand National Steeplechase, held annually at Aintree, England, will be revived this year after a lapse since 1931. The contest is sponsored by the Rolling Rock Hunt Racing Association and will be held on the association's course at Ligonier, Pa., Friday, October 11th.

The race presents all the desperate hazards and conditions as those of the great English course.

Nomination stipulations for the three and a half mile event, to be run over a brush course, are as follows:

"International Gold Cup, Steeplechase Handicap. For five-year-olds and upward. By subscription of $10 each, to close Saturday, September 14. A payment of $15 additional if not declared by Tuesday, October 1st. Starters to pay $2 additional, all to the winner, with $1,000 added, of which $200 to second and $100 to the third horse. To be ridden by Amateur or Professional riders duly qualified by the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association.

"The owner of the winner also to receive the Gold Challenge Cup, originally offered in competition at Grassland Downs, Tennessee, and presented to that organization by King Alfonso XIII of Spain. The Cup to be held until sixty days prior to the next running of the race, but in no case longer than one year, at which time it is to be returned to this Association.

Horses finishing first, second or third in this race will be qualified to compete in the 1936 running of the Grand National Steeplechase, Aintree, England."

Entries close September 14; declarations to be made by October 1.

The first running of this steeplechase handicap was under the auspices of the Southern Grasslands Hunt and Racing Association and the race was held at Grassland Downs, Gallatin, Tennessee, in 1930, arousing the interest of some of the most prominent sportsmen in America and England.

It was run again the following year, allowing many American bred and schooled horses a "go" at it but the event was discontinued with Richard K. Mellon in possession of the trophy. In a sporting gesture, Mr. Mellon returned the Cup to competition and for the first time since 1931, American thoroughbreds will now be afforded the opportunity of showing their Grand National quality in full view of American sportsmen.

Says Whiskey Aided His Gassed Condition

the highway. When Mr. Jacoby asked him for his license cards, he showed them to him."

Subjected to a severe cross-examination by Assistant District Attorney Edward G. Biester, the youth refused to testify definitely whether he had told Patrolman Devlin that the defendant was drunk or sober. "I said I couldn't say one way or the other."

Taking the stand in his own behalf, Kerrigan, who is employed by the Home Owners Loan Corporation, and was working out of Scranton, testified that while making the curve he saw a truck in the middle of the road and swinging to the left collided with the fence.

"I do not drink whiskey because I have had ulcers in the stomach on and off. Prior to the accident I had not tasted it since 1931. I had a sandwich and bottle of beer at Martin's Creek. I was driving rather fast."

"When Jacoby asked me for my driver's cards I went through the cards in my pocket and selected the proper ones. He asked me whether I was insured and I said 'Yes, in the Employers of St. Louis.' I asked to be taken to a doctor because I had pain in the back of my head and a spinning sensation."

"Two young men took me to the office of Dr. Grim at Revere, where I was treated and given several pills. When the officer arrived later on he took me to the office of Dr. Cope, who told him that it was a court case and he did not want to be bothered."

"Because he refused to do it, we went to the office of Dr. Leguin at Riegelville, where my tongue was stitched and I underwent a test for drunkenness. Before we left I sat down and wrote out a check of $3 for his fee."

Kerrigan denied that he was under the influence of liquor and unable to drive a car.

Dr. Howard R. Hicks, Doylestown physician, who examined Kerrigan following a hearing before Justice of the Peace W. Carlile Hobensack, testified that he placed another stitch in his tongue because the wound had reopened.

Deliberating less than a half hour, a jury returned a verdict of not guilty, but directed that the defendant pay the costs of prosecution.

An 18-year-old girl, Mary Cunningham, of Langhorne, R. D. No. 1, who pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny and receiving stolen goods, was placed on probation for a three year period by Judge Calvin S. Boyer, with Miss L. Gertrude Bright as the probation officer.

The costs of prosecution were placed on the county.
